

Yellow:

I am a 13-year-old girl.

I am in jail serving time for insider trading and am keeping busy by crocheting afghans.

I am in second grade and my mom says that I have no marketable skills.

I am a Green Beret in the Army.

I am a Top Gun in the Navy.

I just turned 80 years old.

I am a 40 year old stay-at-home dad.

I am a 20 year old full-time student.

I was laid off about a year ago and quit looking for work 2 months ago.

I have a bad back and am on disability.

I was a teacher for 30 years and just retired at age 53.

I am unemployed but can't look for work this month because I don't have any transportation.

I have given up looking for work because I know there is nothing out there for me.

I feel like there is no point in looking for work because there are no jobs available in my area.

My parents tell me that my job is going to school.

My job is taking care of my kids.

I am 17 and in juvenile detention for calling in a bomb threat at my high school.

I stopped looking for work in 2010.

I got into a motorcycle accident and can no longer work as a mason.
